

SECURITY MANAGEMENT SYSTEM

Intergrated Security Manufacturing (ISM) is a specialist manufacturer of integrated security management systems incorporating front-end software and hardware devices.

"The nature of threats to global security are ever changing which make all aspects of our security ever more important. Our successful growth clearly demonstrates that we embrace this highly challenging market, and our dynamic approach will continue to meet both the current and future needs of our customers". Says Andrew Bailey, Commercial Director of ISM. "In selecting a partner for our hardware it was important that we choose carefully ensuring that the company carried similar core values. We chose Amplicon as they are equally established with similar business ideals and are capable of meeting our ever-increasing demands for service, product delivery and most importantly continued investment and quality."

For the Concept 2000 and Genesys hardware, Amplicon provide industrial rackmount systems. These are reliable and repeatable which is especially important where bespoke application software has been developed.
